New school board members to be elected

RANGELEY — With the passage of the Reorganization Plan for the Rangeley Lakes School Union #37, the towns of Dallas Plantation, Magalloway Plantation, Rangeley and Sandy River Plantation will be moving forward with the implementation of the region's plan.

The next step is a special election of new school board members to form the regional district. Each of the participating towns will be electing their own representatives to the new board. Dallas Plantation and Sandy River Plantation will each have two members. Magalloway Plantation will have one member and the town of Rangeley will have five members.

The special election to elect the board of directors is scheduled for January 19, 2010. Residents who are interested in running for a seat on the new board need to obtain nomination papers from their local town offices.

After the results of the election are certified by the State Board of Education the first meeting of the new RSU Board will be held sometime during March. The new board of directors will participate in the development of the 2010-11 budget in anticipation of assuming responsibility for the newly formed district on July 1, 2010.

Kingfield information kiosk completed

KINGFIELD — The Kingfield POPS Festival of the Arts Committee has recently finished having the town kiosk moved and refurbished.

There are three sections of the kiosk ready for use. One section will house the town map, listing all current businesses in town. At the bottom of this section, will be an area where business cards may be posted. The cost of posting a card for a year will be 20. In order to have a card posted, the card and check should be brought into The Camden National Bank.

The second section will be used by the two Kingfield real-estate offices to post current listings.

The third section will be used to post current events by non profit organizations and the town office. In order to post an event, those interested should pick up the key at The Camden National Bank and return the key after posting.

When the event is over it will be the responsibility of those placing the poster to get the key and take the posting out. No yard sales and no taping on the outside of the kiosk are allowed.

The committee expressed its thanks to Anni's Market for letting them put the kiosk on their property and for all the help it has received along the way.

If anyone has any questions, contact Pat Johnson at 265-5206.
